Weston Consulting Planner active with the Greater Toronto Civic Action Alliance

The Toronto and Region Conservation Authority, together with the Greater Toronto Civic Action Alliance's Greening Greater Toronto initiative, has released The Living City Report Card 2011: an assessment of the environmental health of the GTA.

The Report Card is the work of many experts who have collaborated to produce this independent, unique analysis of the drivers that influence the GTA's environmental performance. It assesses where we're making progress, sets out short and long term targets and assigns grades. It also identifies opportunities for action by GTA leaders, organizations and residents.

Jane McFarlane, planner with Weston Consulting, is an active member of the Alliance and author of the section in the Report Card which measured municipal progress in achieving higher density development. The Report considers that progress has been made with many promising developments in recent years, designed to focus growth in higher density areas.
